The mill

MOULIN HOCHÉ is located in the town of Rozet Saint Albin, in the south of the Picardie region. A mill has stood here since the 16th century. For many years, the river Ourcq, which flows alongside the mill, was the sole source of energy for flour production.

Nowadays, we combine tradition and modernity to produce premium flour that imparts authentic flavours and aromas to our customers' bread.

The millstones

Making stoneground flour is a time-honoured technique that allows the miller to express their true craft. Bakers who love working the dough will appreciate the distinctive properties of MOULIN HOCHÉ's stoneground flour. This fluid, silky flour gives the bread flavour, authenticity, and an extended shelf life. Using a millstone allows the flour more time, enabling the miller to preserve the wheat germ. It also produces flour with a higher fibre content.

THE ART OF MILLING

The hand is the miller's finest tool; with a skilled touch, they precisely calibrate the millstone to adjust the particle size of the flour.

THE ART OF DRESSING THE MILLSTONE

Dressing the stone with a mill pick, restoring the millstone's vigour and performance, reshaping the furrows that enable the grain to be finely ground – this is the expertise of the millstone dresser. This know-how, inherited from millers of days gone by, is passed down through the generations right here.

Quality

From wheat to flour, MOULIN HOCHÉ's process is meticulously managed through a computerised HACCP system.

In collaboration with IRTAC (the French Institute for agri-food research in grain), MOULIN HOCHÉ is actively involved in a food safety monitoring plan.

OUR FIRST CRAFT: CHOOSING OUR WHEAT

The stringent sourcing of wheat – choosing the right varieties from the right regions – is the first way we guarantee the quality of our products. We systematically analyse every batch of wheat after harvesting. Our exacting standards in selecting raw materials guarantee premium-quality products for our customers.

OUR PRIORITY

Our priority is to provide every guarantee of our products' traceability and quality. We carry out all the analyses and checks necessary to ensure the compliance and quality of our finished products.

MADE IN FRANCE

100% of our raw materials come from France.

A recognised premium flour specialist, at MOULIN HOCHÉ we mill all types of grain (wheat, rye, spelt, etc.) using both traditional millstones and roller mills. Our production process enables us to offer a wide range of flour types, from type 45 to type 150 wheat and spelt flours, as well as type 85 to type 170 rye flours.
